CASH, OR ITS EQUIVALENT. Country merchants have an advantage over those of the city that we think must be modified, or else results disastrous to the latter will follow. Memphis business men buying in the east or west, have to pay cash; those to whom they sell claim timefrom thirty to nirety, and even one hundred and twenty days-and often, when that expires, seek and obtain extensions, much to the disquiet and inconvenience of their creditors. This is hardly fair. Of course, we know every man will get what he can and take all the advantages of money and time he can secure. But, if the country merchants will reflect for a moment that their interests are so close akin to those of the city, that one cannot be affected without injury to the
